

May 16, 2013, 10:42am CDT

StreetLights Residential tops out Uptown tower

The Taylor, a luxury high-rise residential tower, is located at 3030 Carlisle St. in Uptown Dallas.

Dallas-based StreetLights Residential has topped out its first luxury high-rise apartment building in Uptown Dallas.

The residential development company was founded two years ago by CEO Doug Chesnut, who has nearly three decades of experience from firms including Gables Residential and Trammell Crow Residential.

It was exciting to see the firm's vision grow from the ground to a 17-story tower, Chesnut said.

The high-rise residential tower, known as The Taylor, will feature 308 apartment homes, which include 10-foot ceilings, granite countertops, hardwood floors, stainless steel appliances and large walk-in closets.

Other amenities include a resort-style pool, club lounge and a deluxe fitness center. The rooftop terrace -- which has a private dining room, catering kitchen, outdoor grill and fireplace -- has views of downtown and Uptown Dallas.

StreetLights Residential has begun pre-leasing The Taylor's initial units, which are expected to be completed later this summer.

Candace covers commercial and residential real estate and sports business.